THE BEST LOVED WOMEN

The world loves a true and noble woman more than the greatest beauty that ever lived or the most brilliant intellect. Within the memory of every one there are noble, womanly lives, which have been dearer and better to us than the most brilliant women of history. Not for the beauty of a Helen of Troy or Cleopatra, nor for the brilliancy of a George Sand or a Joan of Arc would we sacrifice these lives. Indeed, if we had to choose between one or the other, we would wipe from the slate of history those historic characters rather than destroy the sacred influences of a nobler mother, sister, or wife, which have shaped and formed our careers.—Ex.

THE UNSPOKEN WORD

The story is not a new one of the man, of the New England descent and education, who had been married for a long time, and who was devotedly attached to his wife. His life without her had been a hard and solitary one, and in the sunshine she brought him, his nature blossomed out into good deeds and gentle thought.

"You are not as melancholy as you used to be," said an old acquaintance to this happily married man.

"Melancholy! I should say not!" he replied, with emphasis. "How could any man be sad with such a wife as I have? Why, sometimes when I think of what she has been to me, it is as much as I can do to keep from showing right out what I think of her!"

The man who lacks emotional expression is not confined to New England. He is to be found in all climes and places. This strange reserve, this fear of having the appearance of "gushing," has sometimes been the cause of the marital unhappiness that has ended in the divorce courts.

I remember hearing a little story a good many years ago of a poor woman in a Western town, who had worked beyond her strength keeping her home in a state of exquisite order and cleanliness. One day a neighbor found her giving the finishing touches to the stove she had polished until it shone in every part. She looked, as the neighbor expressed it, "ready to drop."

"Why do you go on working so hard in order to have everything just so when you are tired out?" asked the outspoken caller.

"Oh, I shan't mind it after my husband gets home, for he will say how nice everything looks, and that will rest me right up."

There are many tired wives who would be "rested right up" by a few words of praise, so strong is their craving for appreciation of their efforts to please the husbands they love. I was once sitting in a railroad car when two women came in and took the seat directly behind me. It was just before Christmas, and they were heavily burdened with their various purchases. When all of their bundles had been packed in around them, one of them said to the other:

"What are you going to give your husband for a Christmas present this year?"

"I hardly know yet. Somehow, it is so hard to get presents for a man. I'd like to make something myself, so that my husband can't throw it up to me that I bought the present with his money. Of course he is just joking, but somehow I never like to hear him say it. May be if I made him something with my own hands he would appreciate it more."

"And mebbe he wouldn't!" exclaimed the other woman, with explosive emphasis. "Now, I felt just that way last year about my husband's present, and I'll tell you what I did. I'd often heard him say that these ready-made shirts never wore nor fit like good hand-made shirts. Well, I've made hundreds of shirts before I was married, and I am a born seamstress, but I have had so much to do, sewing for my five children in recent years, that I have had to give up shirt making, but I thought that I would make my husband half a dozen shirts with my own hand, and have them all done up nice for his Christmas present."

"He ought to have gone down on his knees and thanked you for them."

"Well, I told him how I had made them with my own hands and all that, and he just glanced at them and said:

"What did you do that for when you could have bought them already made for a dollar each?" and then he went on smoking his cigar. It was the last time I ever tried to do anything to please him!"

This last time comes in many homes in which the husband carefully represses every look or expression of appreciation or of gratitude.—J. L. Harbour in the Household.

CANCER IS NOT INCURABLE

Time was when Cancer was considered as incurable as leprosy. Physicians and friends could give little relief or encouragement to one afflicted with this terrible disease. Even now doctors know of no remedy for this fearful malady; while admitting it to be a blood disease, they still insist that there is no hope outside of a surgical operation, and advise you to have the Cancer cut out, but at the same time cannot assure you that it will not return. You may cut or draw out the sore, but another will come in its place, for the disease is in the blood—it is deep-seated and destructive, and beyond the reach of the surgeon's knife or caustic, flesh-destroying plasters. The blood must be purified and strengthened, the system relieved of all poisonous, effete matter before the Cancer sore will heal.

S. S. S. is the only medicine that can overcome this powerful and contaminating poison and force it out of the blood. It builds up and invigorates the old, and supplies new, rich, life-giving blood. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy; no mineral can be found in it; the roots and herbs from which it is made contain powerful purifying properties that act directly upon the blood system and make a safe and permanent cure of Cancer. It has cured thousands, why not you?

Cancer is not always inherited; your family may be free from any taint, yet your blood may become so polluted that a severe and stubborn form of the disease may develop from a sore or ulcer on your tongue or other part of your body; a slight bruise or hurt, a little pimple on the eyelid, lip or nose, a small lump on the jaw or breast, a harmless looking wart or mole, and other causes so insignificant as to attract little or no attention. If you have an obstinate sore, don't rely upon salves or ointments to cure it—begin with S. S. S. at once; it will cleanse your blood and prevent the formation of cancerous cells.

Mrs. R. Shirer, La Plata, Mo., writes: "A small pimple came on my jaw about one inch below the ear on the left side of my face. At first it gave me no trouble, and I did not think it was anything serious until the jaw began to swell and became much inflamed. At the same time the sore began to spread and eat into the flesh, and gave me intense pain. I tried everything I could hear of, but nothing did me any good. I then began the use of S. S. S., and after taking several bottles the Cancer healed, and there is now no sign of the disease. This was two years ago, and I am still enjoying perfect health."

Send for our special book on Cancer; it contains much information that will interest you; it is free.

Write our physicians about your case, and for any advice or information wanted; they have made a life study of Cancer and all blood diseases. We make no charge whatever for this.
